Celebrating the Quadri-Centennial in an Elaborate Manner.

BIG MILITARY-CIVIC PARADE.

Ten Thousand Public School Boys March Like Veterans.

MEMORIAL ARCH DEDICATION.

Ex-President Cleveland the Guest of the City.

Clear and threatening clouds obscured the sky this morning and the air was chill and raw, but these things did not discourage Brooklyn from her determination to celebrate the Columbian Quadri-Centennial in a manner worthy of the occasion and of the fourth city in the New World discovered by the intrepid navigator.

Grand Marshal of the Parade.

The proclamation of the President was quite generally heeded in the city of churches, and Oct. 21 is a holiday in Brooklyn.

All public offices, the courts, the banks and most stores and factories are closed, and the people are devoting themselves to the observance of the day.

Grand Marshal of the Parade.

Flags from every peak, and it is a poor citizen, indeed, who does not display at least one flag or a bit of bunting on his house front.

The City Hall, Court House, Police Headquarters, Register's Office, Post Office and other public buildings are a mass of fluttering colors.

Of course the chief event in the celebration was the great parade, and in the early hours of morning the sound of music and drum was heard in every street, and uniformed bodies of men marched to and fro in every thoroughfare.

It was the greatest parade Brooklyn ever had, and the streets were early crowded with the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts of the paraders, together with their New York relatives and all the male population not engaged in the parade.

The dedication of the Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Arch is a feature of the day. There is a concert and dinner by the Columbian Club this evening at the Academy of Music and firework of fireworks at the park.

other to a reception at the club-house this morning prior to the start of the parade, and this brought an immense crowd about the doors of the club.

By the order of the Grand Marshal, Major-General Isaac S. Catlin, the commanders of all organizations were to report to him at his headquarters, corner of Second Avenue and Henry Street, at 9:30 o'clock, and the old warrior never marched at the head of a more creditable army of American citizens.

It was indeed a worthy parade, ending at the main entrance to beautiful Prospect Park and becoming there a part of the immense audience gathered for the ceremonies of the dedication of the magnificent Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Arch, which includes the singing of patriotic hymns by the United German Singing Societies and the High School boys, and addresses by Mayor Rudy, Rev. T. W. Talmage and Rev. Dr. E. W. McCarthy, of St. Augustine's Church.

More than thirty thousand Brooklynites, young and old, participated in the demonstration, which formed in the vicinity of Henry and Pacific streets.

The route of the parade was from Pacific through Henry, Madison, Court and Scherhorn streets, Lafayette Avenue, South Orange street, Hanson place, Fourth Avenue, Warren street, Fifth Avenue, Prospect place, Sixth Avenue, Union Street, Eighth and Flatbush Avenues to the Brooklyn Park Plaza.

The reviewing stand was erected in the plaza, facing the Memorial Arch, and it and the other grand stands were crowded with people long before the parade arrived at that point, more than ten thousand being seated. The plaza and the sidewalks all along the route of the parade were packed with spectators.

CHICAGO'S GREAT DAY

Impressive Dedication of the World's Fair Buildings.

15,000 Troops Drawn Up to Receive the Distinguished Guests.

Vice-President Morton Rides at the Head of the Procession.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—In the presence of 100,000 people, and amid the echoes of the largest chorus assembled in the history of modern times, the World's Columbian Exposition was formally dedicated today by the dignitaries of the nation.

In the audience were probably more distinguished Americans than have ever been seen together on any commemorative occasion in the history of the Republic. Learned jurists from the Bench, Cabinet officers, Governors of States, Senators and Congressmen, admirals and generals, representatives of foreign powers, cardinals, with their hosts of apostolic fathers, and men of science—all gathered to do honor to Christopher Columbus.

The President of the Exposition claimed him as the author of the National development of this age, and hence, he, the frequent device characterized him as a gladiator of art, science, invention and higher civilization, and Cardinal Gibbons claimed him as a zealous representative of the Church of Rome, an "apostle who was inspired with the sublime ambition of carrying the light of civilization to a people buried in the darkness of idolatry."

In an address nearly twice as long as the average oration of the day Mrs. Palmer, of the Board of Lady Managers, only mentioned the great navigator once, and that was to declare "the fact that the General Government has just discovered women" to be of more importance than Columbus's discovery of America.

The addresses of Chalmers M. Depew and Henry Watterson were well received and accepted as highly appropriate to the occasion.

The reception accorded the great Kentucky editor amounted almost to an ovation.
